REview aims to provide a conduit for scholars, professional practitioners and students to express ideas, concepts and research findings from all fields related to the real estate profession. REview focuses on the interdisciplinary nature of real estate by blending both informational practical papers with application-based academic research across the breadth of design, business, economics, engineering, finance, law, planning, development, marketing and property management.

Information on submission requirements can be found at www.crer.cornell.edu or via e-mail from the CRER Executive Editor at crer@cornell.edu

Visit www.crer.real estate.cornell.edu for full-text versions of all previous editions.

The Cornell Real Estate Review is a student-based publication with support from the PROGRAM IN REAL ESTATE and the CORNELL REAL ESTATE COUNCIL.

Commercial Leasing in China: An Overview
by Gregory M. Stein

Alternatives to Golf Course Developments in an Environmentally Sensitive Market
by Tyler Grooms

Case Study: Sun Arrow Apartments
by Randy Hagedorn

EXECUTIVE PROFILE
Art Gensler of Gensler
“Tremendously honored to be called an entrepreneur, let alone from Cornell.”